RELEASE OF LIABILITY

Equine activities are extremely dangerous. To engage in an equine activity means to ride, train, drive, be a passenger upon a horse, whether mounted or unmounted, or to assist a participant, equine activity sponsor, or equine professional.

There are inherent risks in engaging in equine activities. Horses react unpredictably and may behave in ways that may result in injury or harm to, or the death of persons on or around the horse. Additionally, there are other hazards, such as subsurface ground conditions and the potential for collisions with horses or objects. Tack, facilities and equipment have inherent limitations and may fail or cause injury. There is also potential for other participants to fail to maintain control over their horses or fail to act within their abilities, resulting in injury to others.

Participants must acknowledge these and other related dangers and act in a safe and responsible manner at all times and take all precautions to avoid injury or death to themselves and others.

Mankins' Performance Horses (and/or Travis and Meghan Mankins) are not legally responsible for damages sustained to another solely as the result of risks inherent in equine activities if those risks are or should be reasonably obvious, expected or necessary to persons engaged in equine activities.
